For the Thin and Bloodless!
 The thin and bloodless, with pale cheeks, white lips and frail, angular physique, of this community have been much interested in the reports of physicians and others concerning the effectiveness of the treatment for increasing the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus adding color and weight to their accompanying vigor to the depleted system. A gain of from ten to thirty pounds is not at all unusual where the treatment is regularly used for several months, while the color improves almost from the beginning. Most good health series supply it in the form of three-grain hypomanganous tablets, put up in sealed packets, with directions for home use. Its action aids assimilation and absorption of the food eaten very promptly.—Adv.

Treatment by Which Painless Child Birth Brought Peace and Strength Described From Experience by Happy Women.

Painless babies are becoming more popular every day. Not only in New York City but all over the United States prospective mothers are appealing to the Jewish Maternity Hospital, No. 270 East Broadway, asking a chance to enjoy the wonderful advantages of the "Twilight Sleep," the treatment by which children are brought into the world with no physical suffering to their mothers. An additional wing, accommodating seventy patients, is to be built at once by the hospital directors, and the list of applications is already soaring. At the Freiburg Klinik, Germany, where the treatment originated, more than five thousand mothers have benefited by it in the last few years. Now that it is offered for the first time to American women in their own country, they will doubtless show themselves quick to profit by their opportunity.

While a number of the painless babies and their mothers were having their pictures taken to-day at the hospital on East Broadway for The Evening World, a reporter heard ample confirmation of the success of the scopolamin treatment from the patients themselves.

HOW THE "TWILIGHT SLEEP" IS OBTAINED.

As described in The Evening World, the "Twilight Sleep," or state of semi-consciousness, is obtained by repeated hypodermic injections of the drug scopolamin, which from the very beginning prevents the patient from feeling subjective pain, while in no way interfering with the natural process of birth. According to the physicians, the mother, besides suffering little or not at all before the birth of her baby, is much stronger afterward and convalesces more quickly than in ordinary confinement cases.

Both these results are joyously admitted by the mothers. One of the first with whom The Evening World reporter talked was Mrs. Hansd Harris, a beautiful girl with thick, copper-colored hair, a skin like porcelain and brown eyes. She is barely twenty, and her first baby, a little son, is just ten days old. She lives at No. 449 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street.

"Oh, it is wonderful," she said, her eyes shining. "I had no pain at all, absolutely none. I cannot even remember when my baby was born. At the beginning the doctors waited a few minutes, to be sure that my baby was really coming. Then they gave me the first injection. After that it is a beautiful blank. When I woke up my baby was beside me, and even then I had the most wonderful feeling of strength."

THE GREATEST MERCY TO WOMEN.

"The very day after my baby was born I felt as strong as I do to-day. I felt that I could get up and walk about with no difficulty at all. The 'Twilight Sleep' is the greatest mercy to women, bringing an escape from that pain we all dread so. I talked with a number of other women before I went to this hospital, and every one of them was enthusiastic. And then the treatment spares one's husband and friends so much anxiety. I can't say enough for it."

Another young mother, Mrs. Bertha Goldberg, had a similar story to tell. Her daughter Evelyn, a first child, is ten days old. She lives at No. 332 Rice avenue, the Bronx. An interesting feature about her case is that for several months before her baby's birth she was under the care of a physician, who feared she would be unusually ill when her time came. "There was no pain," she averred. "I was conscious in a way. I knew that the doctor was in the room and I heard him ask me how many injections he had given me. But I felt only a very great drowsiness that at the end deepened into complete forgetfulness. I do not know when my baby was born. They tell me that it was an hour before I regained full consciousness. Even then I felt light and strong, without the horrible dragging exhaustion which comes to the mother who is confined in the ordinary way. I would never have another child except in the 'Twilight Sleep.'"

CASE THAT WAS NOT ABSOLUTELY PAINLESS.

And that last assertion was echoed by Mrs. Pauline Sonderling of No. 340 East Fifteenth street. She is the mother of a ten days' old son, Arthur Israel, and yesterday she was up and dressed and visibly radiant. Yet in her case the treatment was not altogether successful, for it was not absolutely painless.

"Before the first injection took effect I had some pain," she admitted, "and also just before the birth of my child. But it was nothing like so bad as I expected—you see, I had one baby before this last one. What suffering I felt under the 'Twilight Sleep' was over quickly; it wasn't the usual long-drawn-out agony. And I felt so well after my little one came. My friends said they'd never dream I'd had a baby! I've tried both ways, and after this I shall always insist on the 'Twilight Sleep' treatment."

Mrs. Lena Friedlich, of No. 2 East One Hundred and Ninetieth street, is the mother of five children, including the latest arrival, a daughter four days old.

"It never was like this before," she observed happily. "This time I had no pain—none."

"I did not suffer at all," repeated Mrs. Annie Pezinsky, a slender, pretty young woman in the next cot but one. She lives at No. 49 Rutgers street and has a boy six days old. "It is wonderful, wonderful," she continued, in the familiar chorus. "All women should know about this 'Twilight Sleep.'"

And the doctors at the Jewish Maternity Hospital grow more enthusiastic every day. "At first I was sceptical," one of them admitted, "but experience has convinced me that the value of the new treatment is unquestionable. It will be a special salvation for the woman with a highly strung nervous temperament or a weak heart. She alone knows what motherhood has made her suffer in the past."

"The Jewish Maternity Hospital is non-sectarian. We shall do our best to take care of every woman who desires the blessing of painless motherhood. The more funds we receive for the expansion of our work, the more of it can be done. For the hard-working, poverty-stricken women especially need to escape the draining, exhausting torture which maternity so often means."

MR. COLLIER'S CONDITION.

Doctors Think His Chances for Recovery Are Growing.

The condition of Robert J. Collier, the editor and sportsman, who was brought from his Adirondack camp to his home, No. 752 Park avenue, yesterday, unconscious from an attack of uraemic poisoning, was reported to-day to be unchanged except for occasional apparent struggles to regain consciousness. Mrs. McCready and Rogers said that, in the absence of any change for the worse, their hopes for Mr. Collier's recovery were growing stronger day by day.

Aged Invalid Falls to Death.

Isaac Lederer, seventy years old, a sufferer from paralysis and cancer, an inmate of the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, at Gun Hill road and Bainbridge avenue, the Bronx, fell down a stairway from the second floor of that institution at 5 o'clock this morning and died a few hours later from the shock and injuries.

25 Injured in Train Wreck.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Aug. 22.—More than twenty-five persons are reported injured in the wreck to-day of the Kansas City Southern passenger train No. 1, southbound, near Marble City, Okla. The smoking car and chair car, it is stated, went into a ditch.

LITERARY NOTICE—"CLEEK OF SCOTLAND YARD."

"We have had a good many different kinds of detectives snooping through the book-shelves from time to time. There was the incomparable Sherlock Holmes, the redoubtable Arsene Lupin and others too numerous to mention. In 'Cleek of Scotland Yard,' by Thomas H. Hanshaw, there is a brand new kind. About this very 'Cleek' Mr. Hanshaw once said:

"I never had any particular love for the detective type of fiction, so it was no natural tendency which drew my thoughts in that direction, but for years and years I had been beset by a desire to introduce a new type of man into it as the hero; in other words, the man of culture, birth, gentle instincts and high ideals; one who would be free from all irritating mannerisms, above all such habits as those of the drug-fiend and his kin, and I had clearly a creature of the merest errand, but a very tiger toward the naturally depraved and, behind it all, as sharp as a needle and up to the tricks of every type of criminal of the great Underworld—anywhere."

This interesting character, Cleek of Scotland Yard, operates through all the stories of the famous motion picture detective story series, which begins in the Magazine of next Sunday's World. A complete story each week. Begins with the first.
